PROFESSIONAL SUMMARY

Marketing graduate with an interest in understanding how brands influence consumer decisions and how data strengthens strategic marketing. My work explores the intersection of brand strategy, consumer behaviour, marketing analytics and business storytelling, using research, analytical thinking and creativity to examine business problems.

I independently develop a marketing insights journal featuring original articles on branding, consumer psychology, colour strategy and marketing trends. Alongside this, I use Microsoft Excel, Tableau and Power BI to analyse data, explore business performance and develop dashboards that communicate insights through data visualisation. I aspire to contribute to brand growth, consumer insights and data-informed decision-making while continuing to grow as a marketing professional.
